

Students from the University of Puerto Rico, Rio Piedras campus study the use of poultry droppings as an alternative energy source ^[1]

Submitted on 3 December 2012 - 1:00pm

This article is reproduced by CienciaPR with permission from the original source.

Calificación:

No

CienciaPR Contribution:

Press Release, Universidad de Puerto Rico

Original Source:

Group of student researchers with Dr. Carlos Guilbe López. From left to right: Beatriz Vigo Rivera, Claudia V. Quiles Cruz, María Cristina de la Vega Chaparro and Mariliz Sánchez Figueroa.

Students from the University of Puerto Rico, Rio Piedras campus, studied the use of poultry droppings as a potential source of green energy, informed today Dr. Carmen S. Maldonado-Vlaar, Director of the Project of Undergraduate Research Initiatives and Creative Activities (iINAS, for its Spanish acronym).

The original story is in Spanish. To read the full version, please click on the "Español" button below or the link at the top right of the page.

Tags:

- iINAS ^[2]
- UPR ^[3]

Source URL: <https://www.cienciapr.org/en/external-news/students-university-puerto-rico-rio-piedras-campus-study-use-poultry-droppings>

Links

[1] <https://www.cienciapr.org/en/external-news/students-university-puerto-rico-rio-piedras-campus-study-use-poultry-droppings> [2] <https://www.cienciapr.org/en/tags/iinas> [3] <https://www.cienciapr.org/en/tags/upr>